Gallup Poli

Humphrey Leads Among Democrats

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N. J. March 19—The latest nationwide survey, completed just before the recent New Hampahire and Fights primaries, shows Sen Rubert Hamphrey of Minnesota for the first time to be the top nomination choice of Democratic voters

This survey, which simulates a nationwide presidential pri-mary, shows Sen. Humphrey leading the field with 35 percent of the vote, to 28 percent for Sen. Edutand Musica of Maine.

In January, Sen. Hamphrey --trailed Sen. Muskle as the top nomination choice by the mar-gin of 10 percentage points. But by February, Sen. Humphrey had cut Sen Muskie's lead to three percentage points.

When Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, is included in the latest list of Democratic possi-bilities on the basis of his plan to run in state primaries as a Democrat, Sen. Humphrey continues to bold a lead over Sen. Muskie, by about the same

Gov. Wallace currently has a selid hold on third place on a national basis, winning 15 percent of the vote of Democrats. The results reported are based on interviews with 612 Democrats nationwide out of a total sample of 1,567 admis, 13 and older. Interviews were conducted between March 3.

Pompidou Visit To Heath Ends in General Accord

By Alvin Shuster

LONDON, March 19 (NYT).-Prime Minister Edward Heath and President Georges Pompldou of France ended two days of talks with general agreement today on the major goals of an enlarged European Economic Community, but apparently still at odds on some of the methods to achieve them.

The informal discussions, held this sunny weekend at Chequers Mr. Heath's official country home, were described as relaxed and friendly, with hoth leaders "thinking along the same lines." The issues that they could not agree on were left for the summit meeting of European leaders in October. Apart from the substance, the meeting carried significance as another step toward improving long-strained relations between the two countries. The two lead-ers last met in May, 1971, when they cleared the way for the acceptance of Britain's bid to join the community.

A key question left unsettled in the talks was French insistence that a new political sec etariat for the community be based in Paris rather than Brussels. The British are arguing for "closely linked" institutions and feel that political and economic centers should be in one place,

Brussels. The prime minister and the president agreed to disagree on the issue, on the ground that France and Britain are only two of the 10 members in an enlarged community. They left the matter for the summit meeting. Another issue unresolved was the strengthening of the powers of the European Parliament at Strasbourg. They merely agreed that the summit meeting should discuss whether the parliameot's effectiveness is sufficient.

Such differences between Mr. Heath and Mr. Pompidou over evolving community institutions were not unexpected. In general, the British are in favor of stronger community institutions, including the parliament, while the French feel that they are strong enough.

Apart from their concern over supranationalism, the French do not share Britain's desire for In general, Mr. Pompidou believes that real power should continue to lie with the executive branches of the member governments.

Informed sources said that during the six hours of talks over yesterday and today, the two caders devoted much of their time to discussing moves toward economic and monetary reform, trade, the relationship of the community to other countries, including the United States, and further steps toward European cooperation in industry and The sources said the leaders felt it was "premature" to take up European defense policies.

EEC Agency On Pollution

By David Haworth BRUSSELS, March 19 (IHT) The establishment of a European environment institute co direct research and coordinate the fight against pollution by the Common Market is foreshadowed in a report on environmental problems that the European Commission will publish this month. It also recommends an "urgent" program to clean up the Rhine within three to five years, to avoid a poliution crisis on the river. Some 6,000 poisonous products find their way into the Rhinc every day now, the report notes. It sets out a plan for Euro-pean governments to fight noise nuisances and air and water pollution-including that in such zones of common interest as sea-shores and border areas. It also covers the safeguarding of national parks and offers proposals on town planning. EEC officials express satisfaction about the wide measure of unanimity achieved in their con-sultations with the six member governments and are optimistic that the report will be approved by the Council of Ministers here. What the officials termed a "particularly helpful" memorandum states that the European Commission is one of the best frameworks for antipollution cooperation-although lt warns of the délicate balance be-tween protecting the environment and upsetting international trade. The Netherlands has made no practical or legal objection to the sims of the commission document and it stressed that the commission should be closely associated with the international commisslon against pollution on the Rhine. This body has no powers of decision and is not able to commit governments to anti-pollution expenditures.

The commission will hold discussions with Britain and other applicant countries but no major objections are expected from

Behind the Armies

One of the many distorting elements in war is that peoples and causes become identified with their armies-sometimes accurately, sometimes not. The military forces, whether they wear uniforms and have a recognized international status or work covertly as rebels, whether they follow the orders of some higher authority or make their own rules, may be regarded as the forefront of a mighty national surge or the tools of a clique. Their successes may be attributed to the just decisions of the god of battles, or that god may simply be accepted as being on the side of the bigger, or more adroitly used, battalions.

For some time the British Army in Northern Ireland has been the target of abuse hy the friends of the Catholic Irish, just as the Irish Republican Army, Provisional or Official, has been the subject of praise or hiame as the spearhead of the other side. There is, of course, a valid distinction to be made here: The British Army is an instrument of policy, accountable, through Parliament, to the British people. The IRA seeks. by its acts, to make policy and is accountable only to the consciences of its members and to some inchoate, yet very genuine, body of opinion among the Irish. The conduct of both forces can affect the course of events. Neither, however, represents the reality of divided Ireland.

Those, for example, who urged that British troops be withdrawn from Northern Ireland ignored the Ulster Protestants, who have just assembled in large masses in Belfast to remind the world that they are not to be tion of the Ulster Catholics is a fact that should not be obscured by the excesses of Mr. Heath, in his forthcoming proposals for peace in Ireland, can move British troops about, add to their numbers or withdraw them. But this would deal only with symptoms, not causes. He can suggest constitutional changes, and perhaps even have them put through the Parliament in London. But what would be their effect on the embittered on both sides of the lines in Ulster? Would an end to British military action in Northern Ireland merely resemble the end to West Pakistani military action in Bangladesh: a relief for the Bengalis and death or expulslon of the Biharis?

The Bangiadesh tragedy-albelt so much greater in scope-has another parallel to that in Northern Ireland. Both show the failure of religious labels to do more than exacerbate other differences among men. West Fakisteni and Bihari Moslems killed Bengali Moslems (and Hindus). Now Bengali Moslems kill their Bihari co-religionists. In Britain, the Roman Catholic and Anglican primates met last week for a joint service to pray for peace in Ireland. It was a long stey away from Smithfield fires, and from the Glorious Revolution of 1638, which gives the Ulster Protestants (Caivinists, most of them, rather than Anglican) their rallying cry. But how strong is the reality hehind British ecumenism when translated into the accent of Belfast or that of Bogside? Human irrationality runs deeper than the armies, and human hatreds can resist the churches.

Shameful Attack on a Diplomat

The young woman, a juvenile, who doused a Soviet diplomat with a cup of blood at American University, while shouting "Murderer, free the Jewish prisoners." was party to an arrogant and unpardonable offense for which all Americans ought to feel shame. No matter how disputed are the policies of a foreign government, personal abuse of its diplomats is intolerable. This particular cffense was the acknowledged work of the Jewish Defense League, whose members have repeatedly committed acts of real and symbolic violence against Soviet citizens and properties in this country. The undenlable result of these acts has been to anger Amerleans and Russians alike and to discredit legitimate peaceable protests against Kremiin Jewish policy. The guerrilla nature of JDL operations may make defense against tinem difficult, but surely all appropriate police and legal remedles must be taken.

family members and sometimes loss of johs (with the subsequent threat of prosecution for "parasitism"), and emigration remains restricted. Neither the uncertain prospects nor the obstacles nor the reports of difficult conditions some emigrants find in Israel, however, have deterred further applications. Meanwhile, the coltural and religious rights of the many who chose to stay in the Soviet Union, there to live as Jews, remain disproportionately limited.

Mr. Nixon has taken a greater interest than any previous President in what he described in a letter to a recent emigrant as "the plight of Jews and other minorities in the Sovlet Union." He is being asked by concerned Americans to take up the cause of Soviet Jewry's emigration and cultural rights when he goes to Moscow in May. HONOLULU. - The dramatic drumbeat of change in Asia combines with a sharp cut in available American forces to impose the need for rethinking U.S. strategy in the Far East. This conclusion, based on inescapable logic, seems supported by the U.S. commander for the Pacific and Indian Ocean areas (known as CINCPAC in military jargon. Adm. John S. McCain jr. McCain, an energetic little submariner, told me with max-imum discretion: "In view of the Nixon dectrine and recent events, a new U.S. strategy is evolving in the Western Pacific. Because of reduced forces I am going to have to rely more and more on naval and air power and mobility to execute my responsibilities."

The "events" referred to are obviously: 1) The President's trlp to Peking which, hy implication, weakened Taiwan's ultimate role in U.S. defence planning; 2: The India-Pakistan war which just about finished off the dodputating the only part of Pakistan in Southeast Asia: 3) The forthcoming reversion to Tokyo of Okinawa, which vittates American military autonomy in base areas there; 4. On Jan. 1, 1972, McCain's command, already immense, assumed the additional responsibility of protecting U.S. interests in the Indian Ocean and the Aleutian Islands. The admiral points out that the former area is not only a political troublespot but one where Russian naval and missile strength is rapidly forging ahead of this country's.

As a consequence, the United States is displaying fresh interest in the Indian Ocean where Moscow keeps up to 20 ships on station. From now on, the American Navy intends to send vessels into that area on periodic voyages. McCain has just visited Ceylon, which for a long time was hostile to U.S. interests but is now worried about the close collaboration between India and Russia. Diplomatic 'Linkage' And the Summit Talks

By Murrey Marder

Washington.—President Nixon's summit talks in Moscow starting on May 22 can be peculiarly influenced by the outcome of a state election in West Ger-many on April 23 through the unpredictable rebound of diplomatic "linkage."

Linkage is the practice of tring what one nation wants to what another nation seeks. It has been practiced up to the hit by both sides in the web of East-West negotiations that await completion in Europa. No one initially anticipated, however, that one strand of the web might extend the consequences of an internal West German political contest in Baden-Wuerttemberg to President Nixon's talks in Mescow.

The connection may turn out to be farietched. But diplomats in Washington and in Moscow, as-ing the interplay. West Germany's nonaggression treaties with the Soviet Union and Poland, signed in 1970, were wanted most by the Communist side, to validate the present fromtiers dividing Europe. As a price for ratifying them, the Western powers tled their ratification to an East-West agreement to guar-antee the Western life lines to West Berlin, signed last Sep-tember. In addition the West tied progress toward a European Security Conference, which the Soviet Union and its allies went most, to signing a four-power protocol to seal the Berlin agree-

Reverse Linkage

Last September, the Soviet Union, in turn, invoked what diplomats called "reverse linkage." In assure ratification of Bonn's treaties with Moscow and Warsaw by the West German parliament, the Soviet Union served notice that it would not sign the final Berlin protocol until the Moscow and Warsaw treaties are retified.

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, whose lead in weaving the web of initiatives from the Western side won a Nobel Peace Prize last year, is struggling new to deliver his commitments. The political contest in the Bonn parliament between his coalition of Social Democrats and Free Democrats, and the Christian Democrats who appose the treaty ratifications, turns next on results of the state election in Baden-

If the Social Democrats win there, gaining control of the parliament's upper house, Brandt is expected in have a safe margin for parliamentary victory on the treaties. Defeat in the state de-tion could thrust Brandt onto the knife-edge requirement of an absolute majority of 249 votes for treaty ratification in the Bundertag. Not only the treaties, but Brandt too, could fall on an adverse votc.

How could this rebound on President Nixon's summit meeting

The Nixon administration, most receptly through the words of lecretary of State William P. Regers, labeled completion of the Berlin agreement "the touchstone for . . . progress" toward East-West "reconciliation" in Europe.

Possible Pattern

"With the anticipated signature of the four-power protocol putting. the agreement into effect," Rogers. said on March 7, "it will be pos-sible later this year to begin active proparations for a Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe in 1973." • In other words, one pattern could be no treaties, no protocol, no conference. That would be muitiple negative linkage all around. In West Germany there is talk of a defeat for Brand: resulting in collarge of East-West detente and resurrection of "the worst months of the cold war." with West Berlin newly subject to Soviet-East German "plackmeil."

From Washington, U.S. officials are wntching with admitted; "close interest." Said one, "That's all we can do-to interfere would nrly rebound."

The prevailing view in official Washington is that whatever happens in West German politics the Soviet Union is extremely unlikely to jettison its basic direction of seeking detente with the West, or endanger U.S.-Soviet negation tions on strategic nuclear arms control, or execute other extrema zigzags at a time when the whole state of international relations is-in transition.

With China as a rivel on the Soviet Union's eastern front, the giobal balance is now too fluid: for any of the great powers to: risk major repositioning moves, it is reckoned. Nevertheless, uncertainty nourishes uneasiness in diplomats, and even josting elenorate linkage breeds disquiet.

Wallace Finds an Issue

By William F. Buckley

EORGE WALLACE emerges as someone to be coped with. There is no doubting the tradition whence he sprang: He was a segregationist who discovered states' rights as the mentle to dress Jim Crow in.

States' rights never much bothered him when it came to receiving federal money, any more than states' rights bothered the great Democratic Southerners whose cooperation was essential to the creation of the New Deal. The worst that has been said about Wallace is aimost certainly true, and I have contributed my share of deroga-

On the other hand, he has now an issue in hand which the sheer stupidity of American political leadership has given him historical and emotional title to. It is the issue, of course, of forced busing. It simply can no longer be maintained that opposition to forced busing is tacit support for segregation.

The current issue of Commentary magazine carries an analysis by the hngely prestigious liberal sociologist Nathan Glazer in which he points, in his patient, painstaking way, to the chaos that busing is bringing us to. and the anarchic intellectual arguments being used by the courts in their hypnotic frenzy to abolish the distinction between de jure and de facto segregation. Com-mentary is a publication of the American Jewish Committee. fastidiously careful to leave well When such a publication finds behind him the segregationist itself saying, mutatis mutandis, ricetoric, rounds out his position not the kind of thing that a speech by George Wallace midwives. That is one of the prob-

Moderately Well

Sen. Jackson came out as distinctly as George Wallace in opposition to forced busing, but although he did moderately well, with 13 percent of the vote, it was clear that the electorate preferred Wallace's formulations, and in any case thought it proper to reward Wallace for the constancy of his position. (Sen. Jackson is not known for his early recognition of the disadvolages of coerced busing.

Such candidates as were ambiguous about busing (Muskia), or favored it (Lindsay, McGovern), were quite simply wiped Muskie, the Democratic front-runner, got the same percentage of the votes from the Democratic column that John Ashbrook, the conservative dissenter, scored against President Nixon in the Republican column.

The question is: How does one remove busing from such as George Wallace? It would have been quite easy to do a year or two ago, but an inert Congress moved too slowly. Now Wallace, what George Wallace is saying, with the populist exhortations the time has come for sober that blend so nicely under the meditation. Sober meditation is circumstances.

He rails against the rich and the privileged and the hypocritis and the moralizers. Against powerful liberals who write legislation which countenances busing. while sending their own children to Hiy-white private schools Against the rich in principle.

. He is saying to the people? By the time your chosen leaders are through with you, not only are you left with little or no money, most of which is being taken away from you in taxes, but with little or no control even over such direct and palpable objects of your anthority as your own children.

Nimble, Earthy

It is a potent combination, and although to be sure it blends most harmoniousiy in the rbetoric of George Wallace—he is a uniquely tuned instrument for this music: faulty, sarcustic, numble, earthy, iconoclastic, exciting-it surely is something which other politicians put off recognizing at their peril

The Democratic leadership is in shambles. John Lindsay, who went to Florida to rescue the Democratic party, got fewer votes: than there are alligators there. George McGovern managed the apparently impossible: He came in behind John Lindsay. Muskin would appear to be this sensone George Romney, Sen. Jacksm has apparently the chance of getting his party's nomination that John Ashbrook has Humphres. though swamped by Wallare, and relatively well. And it pays to remember that Humphrey's position ical tradition is populist.
Wallace can't himself be northnated for any national office by the Democratic party. But under certain circumstances, one coult see him campaigning for Democratic party candidata Hubers Humphrey. And Humphrey text, against coercive busins could be taken straight from the pages of Commentary magazine.

Scourge of Alcohol

Your editorial (IHT. March 14) "The Alcohol Scourge" was excellent and timely. Just one thing confused me. You used the term "moderate alcoholism". I thought alcoholism was the term used to designate (and to separate: uncontrolled drinking 'a pathology within the medical and other scientific areas). from drunkenness or excessive drinking, that the drinker could control? Since aicoholism is a Tover of Babel anyway, I wented to check this out. Things change so fast in this area!

Have we finally reacted the point in scientific research where it has been decided that the inability to combrol alcohol fas with alcoholics), is either a psychosis or neurosis? Dr. Seiden D. Bacon, Director of the Center of Alcobol Studies, Rutgers University wrote:

News Analysis

Nixon's Move Against Busing Tied to Impact on Election

WASHINGTON, March 19'. (NYT).—President Nixon's move against busing, like the rapprochement with China and the resort to wege and price combols.

will stand among his bold reversals of the policies of several administrations. The legal political and social reperensions will long be felt throughout the country.

More than the other Nixon turnabouts, bowever, the move against busing was designed, for dramatic short-range impact in this election year and leaves many more questions than it resolves:

The President's reversal was subtle but nonetheless far-reach-ing. Hitherto, like his Chief Jus-tlee, Warren E. Burger, Mr. Whon had tolerated school busing as an undestrable but unavoidable of official acts of segregation. Henceforth, the President proposes to rule out most busing, even if the effect is to retard or prevent desegregation.

The President asked Congress on Friday to place a moratorium on all court orders that would require husing to achieve school desegregation and to enact during the moratorium legislation that would permanently restrain the use of busing by the courts and the executive branch.

Uniform Standard Sought

The moratorium would last until July 1, 1973, or until Con-gress enacted legislation that would establish a uniform standard for assigning students under integration orders.

Mr. Nixon, ln effect, asked Congress to place limits on the Supreme Court's jurisdiction in the 18-year-old school desegregation effort and to prescribe by legislation steps to be taken in remedying the denial of equal educational opportunity.

By way of compensation for any possible slowing of desegregation, the President would earmark some extra money for the largely segregated schools of poor neighborhoods, despite mounting evidence that their facilities are almost comparable with the na-tional average and that the ex-penditure of more money seems to have no measurable effect on the achievement of pupils. . _

Thus the stage is set for an eventual confrontation between the President and the federal courts, including the recorded rulings of Chief Justice Burger. The stage is set also for a great debate about the effects of regregation on education and the validity of the 18-year-old doctrine of the Earl Warren court-that "separate but equal" has no place in a modern democracy and that "separate educational fa-cilities are inherently unequal." If future busing is to be pro-hibited, there will surely follow hondreds of anti-busing suits from communities that yielded to the courts when they thought they form,

Addict Centers, Heroin 'Lure'

By John P. MacKenzie

WASHINGTON, March 19. (WP).-A special committee of the American Bar Association has called for a system of federal narcotics treatment centers to give some drug addicts methadone -2 synthetic, noneuphoric substirute and, "as a last resort,"

In a report that was critical of policymakers from President Nixon down, the committee said it was time that it was realized that the narcotics problem—the key to coaring street crime—was a medicel rather than a criminal one. The report, which called for experiments including the use of heroin as a "lure" for addicts who would otherwise shun treatment programs, was made public during the weekend over the signatures of nine prominent figures in the law enforcement field.

Among those endorsing the proposal were Frank S. Hogan, the New York district attorney, and Judge Edward Allen Tamm. a conservative member of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington. Edward Bennett Williams, a nationally prominent lawyer, is the committee's chairman.

Other proposals offered unanimously by the committee in-

• Ridding crowded city courts of the thousands of "victimless" crimes such as public drunkenness, gambling, prostitution and homosexuality between consenting adults—so that the courts can deal with the kinds of crime that have aroused citizens' fears for their safety.

• Increasing resources and speedier procedures in court probation offices, so that defendants may be sentenced quickly npon conviction.

 Ending high-bail policies and encouragement of preventive detention laws because, by keeping delendants in jail, they frustrate the rehabilitative process that could begin before trial in many Cases_-

A halt to the time-consuming practice of many courts of questioning prospective jurors individually,

In the committee's view, a net-Work of narcotics treatment centers could reduce the profitability of the underworld narcotics industry. The principal function of the system, however, would be to - Identify addicts and channel them into the rehabilitative process.

By Max Frankel But above all, the President has maneuvered himself out of a difficult corner in this election year, dared his opponents to defy the popular sentiments for which he has spoken and postponed to an-other day the intraciable prob-lems that produced the busing controversy in the first place. Widespread Resentment

The widespread resentment against busing to eliminate segregation was plain. North, East, West and South. The President's earlier posture of leaving the issue to the courts had ceased to protect him from an aroused iblic, and Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama threatened to rob him of vital votes on this issue alone.

The problem was how to get past the opening of schools in September without wholly aban-doming the goal-indeed, the constitutional requirement—of eventual desegregation. The answer, resembling the wage-price freeze of last summer, was a "moratorium," with only a vague prescription of how to proceed

For a time during White House debates, officials were telling a grim joke that has now acquired new meaning. If only they could use trains instead of buses to move children around, they said, the country could take its mind off the explosive slogan of "forced busing" and begin to talk about "training our children."

Essentially, that is what the President has done. He has changed not the noun or the verb, but the subject, by pro-claiming educational values as more important than the social goal of desegregation. But that is a distinction that the courts so far have been unwilling and, in terms of evidence, unable to

Busing has long been accepted as a tool for npgrading education, but the public reaction has been particularly vehement in recent years where the courts ordered white pupils to ride from "good", neighborhoods to the schools of the "bad" sections: Members of Congress have been wring for ways to cast some anti-busing votes—without, in the case of the liberals, wholly abandon-ing the cause of desegregation. The pressure has been manning for a constitutional amendment, but as Mr. Nixon acknowledged, that would take too long to have any effect this fall.

By fossing his proposals to Congress, the President has left his Democratic opponents in the unenviable position of falling into line on his initiative or standing excessed on the unpopular side exposed on the unpopular side of the issue. There is little doubt here that the President's plan, and especially the moratorium on busing, will soon pass in some

U.S. Lawyers' Panel Urges

The committee said it placed ittle hope in what it called "the laudable but impossible goal" of attacking heroin at its source in the poppy fields of Turkey and the Far Fast: All the opium needs of the U.S. market could be grown on 19 square miles in other countries beyond U.S. government reach, it said.

The report was not issued as an ABA policy statement because it has not been approved by the bar association's legislature, the House of Delegates.

House Unit Asks 'Mechanism' Failure Blinds For U.S.'s Dealings With EEC

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP).—The United States and the European Economic Com-munity must find "the proper political mechanism for dealing with each other," a study by the House Foreign Affairs Committee said yesterday.

"The present arrangement is too unwieldy, and a new mechanism must be devised... which hoth represents the unique status of the European Community and provides appropriate opportunity for solutions of the specific problems," the report said.

The report contained the findings of a study mission that visited six countries Jan. 5-21, It was headed by Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D., N.Y., and Rep. Donald M. Fraser, D., Minn., chairmen of the European subcommittee and the subcommittee on international organizations, respectively.

Despite what it called sharp differences between the countries of the Common Market, "the tide of Europeanism is so strong, and manifested in so many ways, that it seems irreversible," the report said, It summed up its findings in four conclusions; • 'We should recognize that profound political changes are under way in Europe and that America has a vital stake in their outcome.

• The U.S. "should recognize that the sum of our European interests is greater than transient issues which often trouble those interests."

• Neither the U.S. nor the Europeans have "devoted sufficient attention to finding the proper political mechanism for dealing with each other."

• Members of the study mission "were very impressed hy the political development of the European Parliament and by its important future role in the European community."

Nationwide U.S. Strike Threat

Union Chiefs to Weigh Dock Issue

By Harry Bernstein

WASHINGTON, March 19.-Top officers of every mejor union in America have been summoned to an emergency "council of war" meeting Wednesday in Washington in a move that one official said would lead to a total shut-down of U.S. ports.

AFL-CIO president George Meany scheduled the meeting

after President Nixon's Pay Board called for a cut of almost 30 percent in wage increases negotiated hy West Coast longshoremen.

One union leader said: 'It might well he called a council of war, hecause we will have to decide labor's next move in the latest confrontation with the Nixon administration, and that move will probably lead to a strike by longshoremen on all coasts."

Harry Bridges, president of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, reportedly has agreed to delay any strike action against West Coast ports alone until the Pay Board rules on contracts negotiated by the AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association on the East and Gulf Coasts. The II.A pacts will be submitted to the board staff this week, but a final ruling on the contracts probably will not come until next week.

Joint Action Pledge Last month, Mr. Bridges said that the two longshoremen's unions had a joint agreement that provides that if the Pay Board cuts back on either the ILA agreement or our agreement, we both join forces and pull ont in every port in the United States."

The ILA president, Thomas
Gleason, has not publicly confirmed the Bridges report hut that understanding hetween the two unions will be a key issue on the agenda of the union "council of war" Wednesday.
The meeting will consider how far th, other unions are willing to go in backing a longshoremen's strike to defy the Pay Board The union leaders will also consid:r whether the five labor mem-hers of the Pay Board should resign in protest. In New York, Mr. Gleason refused to speculate on the possi-bility of a nationwide strike, but said. "Bridges is not going to Washington for a honeymoon." The Nison administration has sald that It is prepared to act immediately to get an injunction if longshoremen strike to defy the Pay Board rulings. But if all longshoremen on all coasts refuse to obey the injunction, it was not clear what the adminis-

Lation or Congress would do. Pay Board sources said that the majority decision to cut the West Coast longshoremen's contract by nearly 30 percent was hased on the feeling by most board members that the hoard would have "lost all of its credibility" if It approved the full contract terms. One source said that the majority wanted the cut to be "substantial enough to show the country we mean husiness. hut also to leave longshoremen with

ITT Director Wants Its Board To Study Firm's Recent Moves

By Philip Green

NEW YORK, March 19 (WP). -Actions by International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. since publication of a disputed memo linking settlement of an antitrust suit with a financial pledge for the Republican National Con-vention "look wrong" and will have to be examined closely by the giant conglomerate's board of directors, Felix G. Rohatyn, an ITT director, said yesterday.

"I don't know whether the company has handled it wrong; I know it looks wrong and because of that we're going to have to look into it," Mr. Rohatyn said in an interview.

Mr. Rohatyn, a partner in the investment hanking firm of Lazard Frères & Co., helped persuade the Justice Department allow the merger of Hartford Fire Insurance Co. into ITT in 1971, after the Anti-Trust Division had filed suit to stop the

'Going to Be Questions'

"In view of everything that's happened," Mr. Rohatyn said, "It seems to me inevitable that there are going to be questions asked to what heppened and how It heppened and whether in the future we should he doing things differently."

He made if not think there was any impropriety in his meetings with Acting Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst, then deputy attorney general, and Richard W. Mc-Laren, then chief of the Anti-Trust Division. In fact, he said, he considered his part in the negotiations part of his responsibility as a director and he would do it egain.

"In view of all this flak. though," he said, "there certainly is a question to he raised as to whether any involvement with anything that looks political is a reasonable business proposition for a company. By that I would include San Diego, even though it's completely innocent and even though It has nothing to do with "The second thing that I'm sure is going to he looked into is the philosophical question of the interaction of the Washington offices and the company's image and what this has done,

Mr. Rohatyn said that, at the time, he firmly helieved a courtordered olvestiture of Hartford, which ITT had acquired in 1970, would cause great damage to the company's shareholders, to the stock market and to the national economy. At the time he was chairman of a Nev. York Stock Exchange committee charged with overseeing rescue operations for brokerage firms in financial difficulties in the operating and financial squeeze of 1968-70. At a meeting with ITT's chairman and president, Harold S. Geneen, early in April, Mr. Rohatyn said, he was told that Mr. Kleindlenst had indicated to "somehody in the company" that he would be willing to discuss the problem with a representative "who was not a lowyer and could make an economic and financial case that presumable had not been made before."

'Very Valid Argument' Mr. Geneen, Mr. Robatyn said sked him to meet with Mr. Kleindienst. "It seemed to me that there was a very valld ar-gument to be made." Mr. Rohatyn explained. ITT is not an in-substantial national asset. Before making final decisions on drastic

Cerman Rightist Party Acts To Aid Christian Democrats

625 in Race As Poles Pick A Parliament

By Dan Morgan

WARSAW, March 19 (WP) voted for a new parliament which has already been assign-ed the task of passing legislation to help the sconomy and consumers, and possibly of enact-ng constitutional changes.

There are 625 candidates inroughout the country, for 460 eats. Write-ins are not accepted. Although the Polish United Workers (Communist) party is assured of an absolute majority n the Seim (parliament), spot hecks indicated a large number of voters were exercising their right to stratch off names from ballots.

It was the first major voting since the December, 1970, ricting that toppled Windyslaw Gomules. from power and replaced him with Edward Gierek.

Name Scratchers One Warsaw resident said he had scratched the three top names from a list of nine in his election district because "I didn't know them and the others were all good fellows." Another said he had scratched all the names off the ballot except one

At Nowy Dwor, a tiny hamlet 20 miles west of Warsaw, people came to a polling place, a local school, on bicycles, motorcycles and horse-drawn carts. After receiving printed ballots a number of the voters used curtained booths, indicating they were scratching off names and extercising some choice.

Mr. Gierek made the campaign. into a forum for discussion of

The Christian Democrats are expected to poll more votes than any other party in Baden-Waerstemberg. That is what makes the National Democrats move potentially significant. Although it had been taken for granted that they would fall below the 5 percent of the popular vote necessary to qualify for the state legislature; they could have siphoned off just enough ballots from the right to defeat the Christian Democrats.

Their withdrawal could free sufficient ballots to make the difference in a close race. Most observers had anticipated that the party would poll between 1 and 2 percent. The expectation now is that most of this figure will end up in the Christian Democratic column.

For the National Democrats, frequently charged with neo-Nazi sympathies the withdrawal also marks their end as a func-tioning political party. Baden-Wuerttemberg is the last state where they are represented in a legislature.

Colombia Police Say German Cannot Be Martin Bormann

PASTO: Colombia. March 19 (Reiters) - A 72-year-old German recluse was cheered as he strolled through this South Colombian cattle town, free from suspicion that he is the Nazi war criminal Martin Bormann. Johann Ehrmann, also known as Hartmann, has decided to stay on in Pasto for two days more following yesterday's police an-nouncement that he was not Hitler's deputy—as alleged by a Bogota news magazine.

They all thought to turn me into Bormann, but I wasn't afraid. Those are all a bunch of stupid asses and I really showed them, didn't I?" he said. These wanted an instant criminal, so they take an old sick man from the jungle and turn him into Bormann.

"You know the Germans are lough. They tried to wipe them out in the Second World War but look at them today, right back

Police said that they would take him back to his jungle. plantation, 300 miles to the border, whenever he wants to go. Meanwhile, he is an honored guest in a well-furnished room in the police barracks here.

Life took a nasty tim for the jungle hermit, who had not left his remote farm in 30 years, when a news magazine linked him with Bormano, who vanished in 1945 from the rains of

During three days of "protective custody," police said that they collected enough documents from Ecuador and Colombia to determine that the old man was not Bormann but a Westphalian peasant who landed in Ecuador in 1936 with 30 other German immigrants. He has lived in Colombia for 44 years.

Although police said that they would still make a routine comparison of the man's finger-prints with those of the Nazi leader, they described the German farmer as "a nice old man." Earlier the hermit told journalists, "I was born in Eichel, Kreis Keisenkirchen, in 1899 and came to Ecuador with 30 other. Germans in 1926. conheast, near the Ecuadorian

Italian police today awaited the final results of an autopsy on millionaire leftist publisher Giangiacomo Feltrinelli.

Preliminary results released last night showed that the 45-year-old publisher bled to death beside an electricity pylon when a dynamite explosion blew off one of his legs.

The finding seemed to contradict leftist claims that Mr. Felfrinelli, a friend of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro and dubbed "the playboy guerrilla" by some newspapers, had been killed by rightists who then made it look as if he were the victim of his own sabotage attempt.

The possibility, however, that he was a victim of rightists, who may have knocked him unconscious or drugged him and then left him to die in the blast late last Tuesday, has not yet been ruled out,

The preliminary antopsy results also revealed injuries to Mr. Feltrinell's head, brain and chest. Doctors said that they had not yet been able to decide when

The doctors have also not yet completed laboratory tests to detect possible drugs in the body. As the nation's police forces, secret service and counter-espionage agencies continued their investigation into the case the press and politicians expressed continuing anxiety about political violence as the election campaign cathered momentum.

In a speech yesterday, Arnaldo. Forlani, the Christian Democratic party secretary, said that Italy was facing a troubled attempt at destruction, in which extremist groups of differing and contradictory origins are involved." The May 7 elections, being held a year ahead of time after the collapse of the center-left coalition, come after years of political uncertainty marked by street violence, sabotage attempts and a neo-Fascist mosuree.

Lockheed-Ga. 'In Survival Fight'

MARIETTA, Ga., March 19 (UPI). - The . Lockheed-Georgia Co. told its employees yesterday that it is competing for new aircraft contracts "in a fight for company survival."

President Larry Kitchen repeat ed in a letter an earlier announcement that the company will fire 5,500 more employees by the end of the year.

He said the C-5 Galaxy program is "winding down" and no new aircraft production contract is in sight to replace it soon, although Lockheed-Georgia is competing for two government short-takeoff-and-landing aircraft pro-

New U.S. Economic Data Is Encouraging, But Fight Against Inflation Still Falters

By Thomas E. Mullaney NEW YORK, March 19 (NYT). -Despite public and private professions of confidence by highlevel government officials over the state of the economy and the efficacy of the controls program, it is obvious that Washingtoo is watching apprehensively as each new statistic is plotted on the economic chariz.

After some discouraging news a week ago on the course of wholesale prices, the economic data and news that became available last week were lergely encouraging, however, with industrial production gaining strongly, total business sales advancing quite well, housing at a record level, the international monetary markets calmer and the Pay Board showing considerable backbons in its handling of the West Coast longshoremen's con-

Finding anything adverse in the news was difficult in recent days, unless the uptrend in in-terest rates that is now under way can be considered as such.

Even if it is conceded that general business activity is indeed picking up momentum and that the wage-price stabilization measures are schieving a reasonable degree of snecess, it will be appropriate for the Nixoo administration to institute a fullscale assessment of progress within the next month or so.

By that time the economicstabilizatioo program will have celebrated its five-month an-niversary, the first-quarter results and the direction of consumer spending in the early part of spring will be apparent.

While hopes are high—part of the rather distressing report on wholesale prices a week ago, Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Ad- "working enormously well," except in the area of farm and food

Amex and Over-Counter

NEW YORK, March 19 (NYT).—Declines outnumbered advances by a small margin on the American Stock Exchange and in the ver-tbe-Counter market last week in slower trading.

Brokers attributed most of the weakness to profit-taking and to investors' continuing concern over the dollar's weakness in European money markets. Another unsettling factor was the possibility of a West Coast dock strike. This possibility resulted when the Pay Board on Thursday slashed the West Coast dockers' first year wage-and-benefit increase to 14.9 percent from the 20.6 percent originally negotiated.

The almost mixed tone of the market was pinpointed in the exchange's price index, which finished on Friday at 28.06, down 0.28 from the preceding week. Volume oo the exchange dropped to 25,693,003 shares from 37,157,170 the week before. A total 58 blocks of 10,000 shares or more changed hands last week compared with 82 blocks the week

The majority of bank stocks advanced on stepped-up institu-tional buying in very active trading. The Bank of America added 3 1/2: Valley National Bank of Phoenix was up 2 1/2: Pittsburgh National tacked oo 2 and Mellon National rose a point.

It was almost the same story in the insurance group where most issues advanced. Connecticut General climbed 3; Kemperco added prices, and added:

"I would oot he surprised to see price controls applied to retail farm and food prices fairly soon. The administration cannot permit inflationary pressures in that area to destroy Phase Two, and they certainly could." Meanwhile, in the money market last week, prices staged a geogral retreat, with shortterm interest rates up sharp!y. Interest rates on bonds were un-changed to moderately higher.

A general conviction that the Federal Reserve is not pres ing credit expansion as hard as previously was cited as the principal factor in the higher rate levels, but there was some sentiment that business is picking up faster than is readily apparent.

The stock market was generally lower last week in less active trading, but the major market averages showed divergent averages showed divergent trends. The blue-chip indexes advanced, while the broader market yardsticks declined. A total of 1,072 stocks showed losses for the week, compared with 689 that gained and 151 that ended unchanged. The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose 3.01 points to 942.88, but the Standard and Poor's 500stock index backtracked 0.45 to 107.92 and the New York Stock Exchange composite lost 0.31 to

Holiday Villages

Investment in the holiday village type of venture, however, bids fair to become one of the most popular investments in the Algarve. The most advanced of these so for is the Torralta International Holiday Club at Alvor; but two other ambitious schemes are also under way. One of these is Lusotour's master plan for Villamours, sited around a splendid beach two an' a balf kilometers long that lies 9 km, from Albufelra and nudges Quarteira on one side. The plan includes on its 1,600 hectares of land a marinaa port area for pleasure craft, with its own urban holiday center, freshwater lake, two golf courses, 600 hectares or farming and stock-breeding area to support the inhabitants, a casino, swimming pools, a 300-roc.n fourstar hotel, a motel, with other hotels, villas and flats, wooded areas which form a rich game preserve and a few one-acre plots porary casino is being built in the area for exploitation during the time necessary to build the permanent government - approved

So far the tourism financial society Lusotour has spent nearly $5 million on infrastructures including 30 km, of roads, the farming and stock-breeding center which produces 4.000 liters of milk a day for present sale in the surrounding region, an 18-hole par-73 golf course with adjacent club house, a riding center and tennis courts. The electric power supply is already ensured by a sub-station which will also serve the nearby town of Loulé, and the water supply and a sewage pumping station are also in operation. Some 40 bungalows are open; a small hotel, the Vilamoura, is open and plots for villas round the golf course are reported to have sold like hot-

Population Boom

When the entire plan is carried out, a new population of some 50,000 people will be added to the floating or resident population of the Algarve. The capital bebind the project is Portuguese.

A rival to the Vilamoura holiday center will be that of Swissfinanced Finalgarve's Praia Grande, beside Armação de Péra. The company is investing some $150 million in this and other schemes in Portugal.

Finalgarve exploits the fine Hotel Algarve at Praia da Rocha club just outside Armação de Pera. This is a singularly beautiful conception, a half-moon of elegant apartments enclosing in its crescent a club bouse with restaurant and bar and a swimming pool, all set within lovely grounds and dominating its own private bathing beach set in a spectacular bay. Among the company's plans is that of exploitation of the Hotel Almansour, which is now being finished. This singularly attractive building is perched high on nanoramic cliffs near the charming little resort of Carvociro in the neighborhood.

Praia Grande beach and the surrounding countryside will be completely transformed by Finalgarve's plans for the holiday village. This will include two luxury hotels, apartment hotels, a health club, sports center, riding facilities. A complete village in the center of the complex will have its own convention center, marketplace, bullring, church, cafés, restaurants and night clubs. There will be an 18hole championship golf course and some 20 swimming pools. Two kilometers of sandy beach will be accompanied by a promefarm, to which Israell experts will be invited to teach local farmers techniques, will provide fresh fruits and vegetables for Whereas Lusotour sells outright to purchasers, investors bealso benefits.

They are linked to the capital by fine motor roads and by an efficient electric railway. A total of 1.-200,000 tourists visited the region in 1971, and 2,000,000 are expected this year.

The resorts nearer the city hava become dormitory adjuncts to Lisbon, and it is not until one reaches Santo Amaro de Oeiras that the first contribution to tourist accommodation is found in the well-equipped Motel Continental, complete with restau-rant, shop, swimming pool and children's musements. Next comes the safe and open beach of Carcavelos, where the Hotel Preis Mar and other accommodation can house some 410 guests.

The majority of visitors to this area, however, are centered in Estoril and the nearby fishing town of Cascais, which has opened up as a really swinging holiday

Portugal Taking Its Place As a Great Tourist Center

ISBON (IHT).—Before World War II, Portugal had a quiet, traditional tourist industry that cut no figure in the world scene. Its clientele was largely composed of the English, who flocked to the sunny Estoril coast to escape the rigors of winter at home, or to the Madelra Islands, which almost became an English colooy.

Even after the war, Portugal was slow to take advantage of the growing tendency of the world's pepulation to travel. It was not until the 1960s that real impetus was given to the tourist industry, which has now become an invisible-income winner second only to that provided by tbe remittances sent from Portuguese immigrant workers

Portugal is rapldy catching up as a world tourist center and its rapid increase has not been made without a tremendous ef-

In 1969 the existing Secretariado Nacional de Infermação e Turismo (SNI), which had its own tourist department and Its Fundo de Turismo for promotlonal expenditure, was completely remodelled. It was given the status of Secretariado de Estado da Informação e Turismo State Secretariat for Information and Tourism) under its coerating head, Dr. Cesar Morelra Baptista. The tourism department became a Commissariat with engineer Alvaro Roquetc, its head, as commissar. The Com-missariat's mission is to increase generous a share as possible of the European tourist industry for Portugal. Its program is varied and full, and its responsibilities increase yearly. First of all, the Secretariat of State's tourism department is responsible for the development of the hotel and restaurant in-

For the subsequent 15 years they benefit from a 50 percent reduction on the same levies and taxes. Purchases of furnishings for such establishments are exempt from transfer dues and from estate and gift

Por instance, the purchasers of suites or apartments in the Finalgarve's planned village at Praia Grande in the Algarye, who are regarded as partners, are exempt from all transfer taxes on the initial purchase. They benefit by complete tax exemption on all income realized from their investment for the first ten years, and a 50 percent reduction for the able to take their money out of Portugal at any time free of all taxes and charges.

Tourism Fund

At the same time the Tourism Fund made loans at a low rate of interest to promote the building of tourist hotels, holiday vilinges and other interesting centers to many of the developers who got in on the ground floor. Now the scheme dustries. No hotel can be built, to encourage foreign investors is project launched, restaurant to match their investment.

> Small sidelines of government encouragement to developing tourism are the awarding of prizes each year for the best regional dish produced by some restaurant, the subsidizing of folk dance groups and backing of fairs and markets where regional craftsmanship is displayed.

The tourism authorities have instituted a compulsory "tourist menu" in restaurants, which enables travellers to eat simply and at a reasonable price. They have also considerably developed the government-run inna called "Fousadas", increasing their number, and introducing some of a high luxury category.

These luxury pousades are situated at strategic points and in ancient monasteries, fortresses, or other historic bulldings. Such a one is the Pousada doa Lôios in the ancient city of Evera, a converted convent. The Pousada da Rainha Santa Isabel in the Alentejo province walled city of (Continued on Page 12, Col. 1)

Tenders have been asked for the bnilding, maintenance and cxplostation of a further 358 kilometers of motor roads.

Lisbon's history dates back some 3,000 years, but an earthquake in 1755 reduced most of the city to rubble, and fire in the city. The Convento de Carmo's Cotnic skeleton is an exception, and the 16th century network of narrow streets and alleys that were spared in the steep old Alfama area are also monuments of the past.

New Lisbon was basically traced cut by tite Marques de Pombal, whose statue looms above the city at the top of its fine main avenue. He looked ahead and traced out a city of straight thoroughfares running from the top of the Avenue da Liberdade parallel to each other down to the waterfront. The 13th century cathedral survived the earthquake, and a unique jewel of architecture is the Casa dos Blcos, huilt of diamond-shaped rocks, where the museum of Portugal's former province of Goa in India is to be installed.

Museums

Among the annual touristic events organized by the Commissariat are an April fair in Lisbon, tourists day when everyone entering the country is feted with gifts and flowers, an April market in the surroundings of Lisbon and an artisans' fair of regional products in the nearby fishing pert of Cascais. A wine festival is usually promoted at Sports events, cultural programs, international congresses all come under the aegis of Portugal's tourist authorities. They publish beautifully illustrated reriews on places and activities of

When the commissariat took over it was already in a favored position, for Portugal's natural assets provide a wealth of attractions for the visitor. Its climate is generous. The average temperature on the northwest coast is around 59 F, with a rugged winter that allows skiing in the Estrela mountains (Serra da Estreia. In the Lisbon area it is around 60 F, and 66 or the south coast. In sunshine hours the southern Algarve coast tops 3,200 hours a year.

Portugal's 832 kilometers Atlantic coastline is strung with beaches. In some places like Caparica across the mouth of the River Tagus from Lisbon, or Praia da Rocha in the Algarve, swaths of golden sand stretch as far as the eye can see. There are a myriad of small sandy bays and intimate coves, stretches of magnificently rocky coastline that is as yet unspoiled, excellent sailing waters for vachtsmen, clear seas for skin divers, rivers full of fish.

There are mountains in the north, beaches down south where you can bathe the better part of the year. The country has a chain of spas that have as yet been but modestly exploited. There is mile upon mile of unspoiled countryside of great beauty with excellent roads to bear the traveller to and through Inland there are some of Europe's most gracious historic villages and towns; Romanic Evora with its Temple of Diana, walled Elvas, medieval Tomar, the city of the Knights Templars, romantic Coimbra, with one of Europe's most ancient universities. A basic chain of hotels and government pousadas already existed. Luxury hotels were not numerous, however, and the pou-sadas were for the most part modest and rustic in style. Lisbon, the capital, had already proved its worth as an international shipping port and a crossroads of international aviation. What was necessary was a wider provision for and exploitation of tourism infrastructures, extension of the available facilities, and the addition of such new ones as the up-to-date traveller demanded. In short, an imaginative conception of the future of tourism in Portugal.

A Tourist Center

The necessary capital has so far been forthcoming not only from national sources but also from government-encouraged foreign investments. British, Amer-ican, French, Belgian, German investors have come forward, with experienced Swiss hotel groups and Dutch developers.

One problem which arose was that of properly trained staff to deal with the promised large-scale influx of tourists. The target of over 4,000,000 has been set for the 1972-73 epoch. For years Portugal has been suffering from the drain of manpower owing to the African wars and the emi-gration of workers to the higherwage-paying countries. Little by little, however, the problem is being solved by the opening of specialized schools for the training of all categories of hotel staff, and by itinerant supplementary courses, Good wages, social security benefits and other attractions are also available, so that the hotel and restaurant worker has a prosperous living

It has been proved by experience that Portugal offers admirable facilities for tourists of the middle-income bracket up to luxury travellers, and much of the country's touristic endeavor is being geared to this clientele. Attention is being paid to cater ing for specialized tourists, such as the golfer. Golf hotels with their own courses cater for this sport, and the southern Algarve is making a speciality of catering for all categories of golfer, with ample provision for inter-national championships being played here. Special ports cater for yachts-men, and international sailing championships of all kinds take place here, especially in Cascals, a singularly good harbor, halfan-hour's car drive up the coest from Lisbon.

Round the capital city there are pleasant beaches, the hill sta-tion of Sintra, Queluz with its ancient palace that has a restanrant in the impressive old kitchens, Mafra with its fabulous monastery-palace, Obidos with a fortress-pousada, and there are scores of attractive villages, market towns and historic monuments within reach,

The Portuguese authorities are also making plans to ensure that Lisbon and its nearby sunny, coast resort of Estoril have their share of international con-

Several of the more modern hotels including the Ritz in Lisbon and the Estoril Sol at Cascais along the coast, offer extensive convention and conference facilities. This year nearly fifty international organizations have marked Portugal for their meetings. So popular is Portugal becoming for these gatherings-which the delegates often use as an occasion for business-cum-holiday tripsthat it is planned in the near future to build a permanent con-gress hall in Lisbon.

Cultural, artistic, industrial exhibitions are a feature of the Lis-bon tourist season, with the festivals of the "Popular Saints" in June to fill the city with galety.

Both the government tourist authorities and the municipalities of the towns and cities of the country collaborate in making the welcome to tourists as warm as possible and their stay full of real Portuguese interest.

festivals as Portugal. There are more than 300 of them every year, some of them combining sharp farming business with gay rustic enjoyment, others religious in origin, all of them colorful and crowded and gay.

St. George slays the dragon each year in the little border town of Moncão in the north. Pilgrims pour wine over the image of São Palo at Torreira near Aveiro during a September festival. Girls bear great crowns of golden loves wreathed in flowers during the Tomar Tabuleiros fair, and serenades from flower-decked boats on the River Lima greet the procession of Our Lady of Agony in Viana do Castelo,

The romarias of the northern Minho province begin with an orderly religious procession and end in fireworks, brass bands and merrymaking. where sardines are roasted in the open air over charcoal and the streets are gay with bunting and flower-decked bandstands.

Tourist Day

The tourist authorities do their best to make visitors feel at home among Portugal's regional and folklore riches, and each year there is a special program to divert them. This year official "Tourists' Day" falls on April 20th. On this day each tourist in the country is greeted with flowers and gifts, and girls in country costume roam the city streets to welcome visitors.

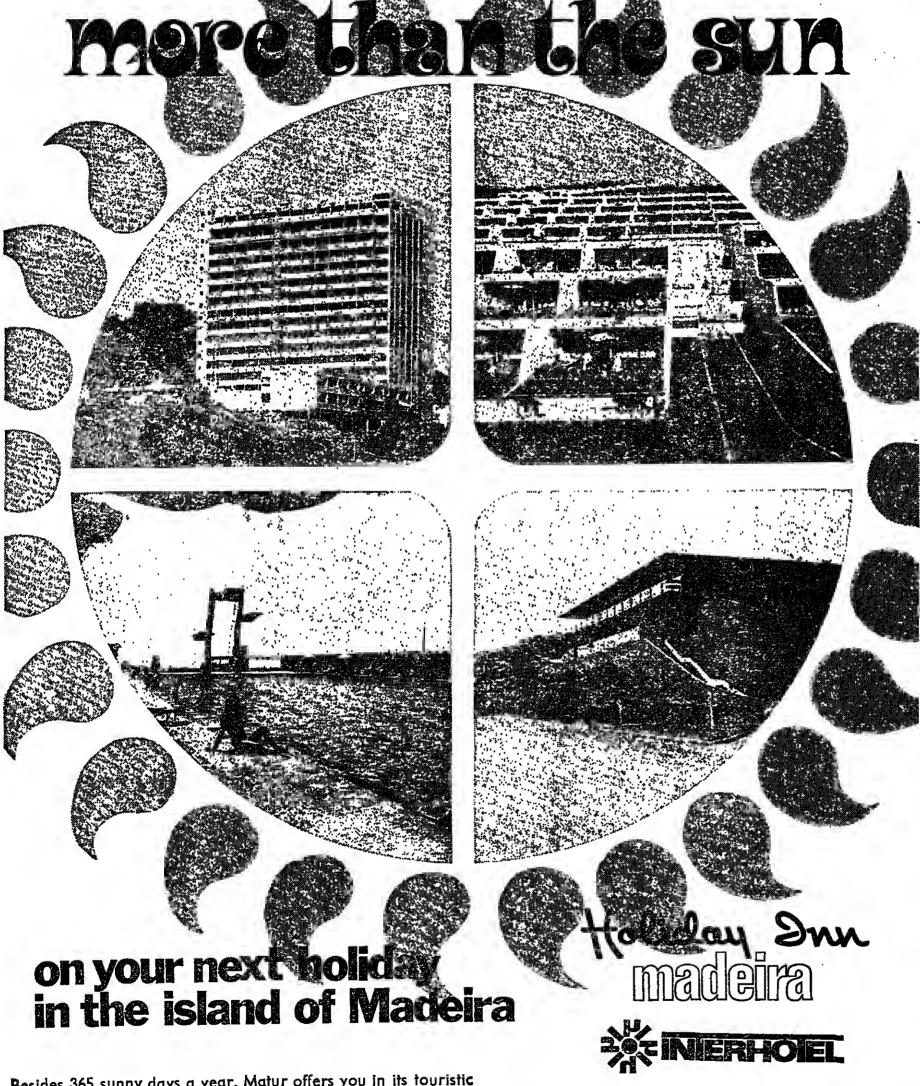

From April 2 to June 1 there is the Spring Market at Belem. a near suburb of Lisbon whence Vasco da Gama sailed to discover the route to the Indies. Here regional craftsmen sell their wares, furniture and pottery, earthenware statues, baskets. and bright shawls. The International Agricultural Pair takes place at Santarem from June 4 to 18, and the Lisbon International Trade Fair from June 9 to 23. The São Martinho horse another lively country trading event. Madeira's Punchal Bay fireworks display on New Year's Eve is a world-famous event.

Alded by Lisbon's position at a cross-roads of world air traffic. the Portuguese authorities have done all in their power to promote international congresses here. Several of the larger hotels such as Lisbon's Ritz and the Estoril Sol in Cascals have fully equipped congress facilities, and the old Estoril casino has been converted into an assembly

The 1972 program lists more than 50 international congresses and meetings, These include an international film festival, the international meetings of several oil companies, the meeting of the North East Atlantic Fisheries Commission, American university gatherings, the International Bar Association and the election of Miss Europe 1972. Many of the congress delegates take their anmual vacation combined their business discussions.

Perhaps the most interesting developments in Madeira, how-ever, and ones which had never been envisaged before, are two for its elegant hospitality in holiday village developments, that of the Reis Magos at Canhico and of Matur.

The Reis Magos complex aims to develop some 400,000 square meters of land which was part of an old fishing village high on the cliffs commanding a spectacular view. It plans to house some 3,500 people in five hotels and surrounding holiday vilias and flats. The complex will have its own shopping cen-ter, sports facilities, culture section, swimming facilties and nightclubs, etc. Building is al-ready under way, and the new village is shaping.

The Matur holiday village is on a more ambitious scale. This too is under way, and already the Internetional Bridge Club is the scene of world championships; flats and bungalows are already inhabited and the planned 300room hotel is rising in their midst. Altogether about 1,000 people can now be accommodated in the houses and flats. An Olympic swimming pool and restaurant are also ready, while the shopping center, which will include snack bars, restaurants, drugstores, entique shops and grocers' establishments with a cinema, is under way.

It is planned next year to build swimming pool on the sea below and the hotel will be provided with a heliport on its roof. There will he an undersea restaurant beneeth the Olympic swimming

Other plans for the Matur project include a mini-golf course, a 9-hole, 3-kilometer golf course and other sports facilities. The capital behind the enterprise is entirely Portuguese, and amounts to a total of 370 million escudos, encompassing the entire village and hotel. It is understood that President Americo Thomas has already agreed in principle to inaugurate the hotel in August this year.

PORTUGAL BEAUTY WITH BOLDNESS

What would you need to consider your holidays really first rate? Ancient buildings with the aura of bistory clinging to them? 18 carat beaches? Breathtaking views? You can find some of these conditions in many places na earth. But none provides whet Portugal has to offer you to have every year the holideys of e lifetime.

Lat's take beaches. Thay are bordered by perfumed pinewoode, stretches of golden sand facing e blue warm sea. Coemopolitan tourist resorts or picturesque tishing harbours. But all of them with the friendly company of the tanning sun. Old places? What about romantic castles perched nn craggy hilltope. Or towns that still have their Medievel walls and streats. To give equal opportunities to all contenders in a recent N.Y. of the higher-ranking side suit, tournament, duplicated deals If East had returned a heart were played in the final round. One of these is shown in the diagram,

When the eventual winners held the North-South cards, South chose to open two notrump rather than an orthodox one-spade. This would have led to an impregnable contract of three no-trump, but West intervened with an imaginative jump to four clubs on the favorable vulnerability.

North showed modest defensive prospects by doubling. However, South judged that his partner must hold a few high cards and made the greedy decision to bid four spades. He feared he would not get enough penalty from four clubs doubled. Four spades is a virtually hopeless contract, and the defense got off to a good start when West led the club jack. East ruffed dummy's queen and returned the diamond jack. He falled to appreciate that West's opening lead was a suit-prefer-

In the replay, South made three no-trump after he had opened one spade and West had made a modest two-clubs overcall. In the other match, one

South also reached four spades and received a diamond lead. However, West had made a pre-emptive jump overcall of three clubs and this guided South to a reasonable plan; he led the club three on the second trick. This would have worked if West held six clubs, a more likely holding. West would have taken the king, but South would then have been able to cash the club ace, the spade ace and the spade king to discard a heart on the chib queen. As West held eight clubs, the result was a disaster. He ducked and the defense cross-ruffed in the minor suits to take four tricks. South managed to win one heart trick, but was down three. As West's teammates collected 500 points from four clubs doubled, he gained 13 international match points. .

Its fishing. Almost any book about trout fishing. Trout fishing, you see especially trout fishing with artificial flies—is essentially pre-lapsarian (essentially, I say, because one must spend hundreds of dollars on pounds of synthetic material in order to do it properly; although I might also add that the higgest trout I ever per-sonally saw taken was caught with a stick, a length of twine and a leaderless hook—no, not a bent pin—by a farmboy who simply felt—the bite and walked backward until the creature was beached). Trout fishing, more than most outdoor activities I can think of, demands that one climb out of one's head and merge with the ecosystem, know its minutiae, accommodate oneself to its secret rhythms, be Adam and Eve in the Garden.

And trout fishing has produced a remarkable literature more so, oddly enough, than many sports more spectacular in form and easier to dramatize. Perhaps because it attracts people with contemplative dispositions, perhaps because its mastering demands a set of skills that can't be explained by simple exposition, or perhaps because its greatest practitioners have tended to be men of education and sensibility, troutfishing books are always more than mere operating manuals and sometimes nothing less than literary classics. One doesn't read a book like Ray Bergman's "Tront" just to learn how to take fish: one reads it to see a mind defin-ing its place in the world with balanced, well-wrought sentences, some of which, it is said, Bergman worried over for days.

But the more common run of tront books are streams-I-havefished - and - fish - I - have-canght memoirs. One reads them to re-encounter the basic experience they describe-the approach to a promising stretch of water; the observation of what the fish are feeding on; the selection of the appropriate lure; the faultless east (oh, so criminally faultless always); the huge strike, when the fish transmits its unique energy up line, down rod, through fingertips and into one's store of dreams; the anxious minutes of struggle, which seem like hours of ecstasy; and the giddy moment of triumph, or, too often, the painful seconds of loss that inevitably stretch out into years of frastrated second-guessing, which they say is the best thing about the sport. To a fisherman, even to a thrasher such as the reviewer is, the experience can't be described too often. So on a cold damp day in March, one turns to books like Ernest Schwiebert's "Remembrances of Rivers Past."

Mr. Schwiebert is an architect and city planner to most people, York Times book reviewer.

For Golfers

I ISBON (IET) — Phere are some 10 golf courses atther to oper-ation or ready for play in Portugal. and more are in view. Tourist expansion is making a terious play for the golfer and the Golf Hotel" is now becoming a feature of the landscape in the southern Algaive, where the sun is alleged to shine for more than 3,000 hours

The old traditional golf courses are in the center and north of the country an 18 hole and a nine-hole course at smart Estoril on the Costs of Sol outside Lis-bon, a 9-hole course at Belas on the way to the hill resort of Sintra, and snother 9-bole one

The Oporto Golf at Silvalide bungalows attached, and a whole togal's second city, while the own 9-hole course. The new golf center is, however, in the south-em Algarye. Here there exists the splendid Penina Golf Hotel with its own 18-bole per-73 course laid out by Henry Cotton at Montes

Other golf plans are 8 holes five in the village for A second course is to be built course in the Azores. A second course, is to be built by the Vilamours complex.

The Prala Grande holiday villaga complex near Armação da Pera in the same area will also have its golf course, with suitable hotel and spartment accommoda-tion nearby. Near Faro in the Vale de Lobos where the Hotel Dona Filipa is situated there is yet-another 18-hole, par-73 golf

In the Offing

Ready for play but as yet not open is the Portuguese Palmares Company's Penninck-designed golf course at Meia Praia in the Lagos area. Five of its holes are on the reclaimed dunes. Its club house will have attached apartment and hotel accommodation for rent, and the attractive Meia Prais hotel is within easy distance.

The Portuguese aviation com-pany TAP, giving its aid to promoting golding holidays in Por-tugal, has instituted an annual champlements prize for visiting golfers. It can be played on any Portuguese course and competitor's scores will be considered

Other golf plans are for a new course in the Azores, where there is already an 18-hole course on Terceira Island, a new course in Madeira, a second course at Penina and one on the south of the Riger Tagus opposite Lisbon. A new nine-hole course is also being added to the Vale de Lobos facilities.

Gaming

As a relaxation from golf, visitors to the Lisbon, Algarve and Punchal (Madeira) areas may indulge in a flutter at the saming The new official Casino at Estoril has excellent gaming rooms, .. a cinema and a vast restaurant with a floor show. as well as a boite. The only other all-year-round gambling casino in existence in Portugal is at Funchal in Madeira, but recently the government authorized the building of three casinos in the southern Algarve province.

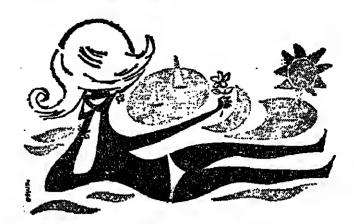

One of these will be at Alvor, one by the Vilamoura holiday village and pleasure craft port and the third must be placed between Tavira and Vila Real de Santo Antonio near the Spanish border. The Vilamoura authorities propose to build a temporary casino, to be in operation next summer, until the plans for tha permanent ones are put into operation. A company designated SOINTAL has been formed by the various Algarye developing companies to build and exploit these casinos. The concessionaries bave undertaken to build such recreative installations as the government has demanded, including pigeon-shooting, swimming pools, four-star hotels and others.

Finally, for those who wish for open air exercise without golf Portugal offers fire fishing and shooting. There is a season for quall, turiledove, pigeon, mai-lard, woodcock, partridge, hare and rabbit shooting and there is bustard on occasion. The seas around offer both inshore fishing and the more exciting deep-sea fishing, including swordfish, big bass, tunafish, white and blue marlin and ray.

Accessibility

LISBON (IHT) -There is no difficulty in getting to and from Portugal or getting about the country while there. Several ship-ping lines from Europe, the Americas, Africa and the East call in regularly at the port of Lisbon.

Passenger traffic is regular in national ships between Portugal and her African provinces of Angols and Mozambique, and TAP, the national sirline, links the country with all parts of the Portugal has become a vital link in world air traffic and Lisbon is well served by international lines as well as TAP. Last year 2.498,103 passengers used Lisbon's Portela Airport. The Portuguese domestic airlines alone served 340,000 passengers. The airport of Faro in the Algarye, one of Por-tugal's favorite sun-holiday areas, increased its passenger turnover 43 percent last year, 362,552 travelers using it as compared with 245,045 in 1970.

Besides the three international airports of Lisbon, Oporto (Pe-dras Rubas) and Parc, a network of some 23 provincial aerodromes exists, and the air-taxt service is now an everyday utility. TAP links Lisbon to Oporto by regular daily flights, and serves Madelra guese Africa and foreign countries.

Jumbos

Ever-expending TAP is now all set for jumbo jet service and the first flight of the new Boeing. 747-B from Lisben to New York is set for March 31; on the following cay the Lisbon-Luanda (Angela) jumbo jet service will be inaugurated. Pilots have been training intensively for the past months at the vast air base at Bela, and the huge hangar to house the plane was inaugurated some time ago.

In order to encourage tourism the Portuguese authorities allowa certain number of charter flights, and package tours, con-sisting of a weekend in Lisbon, on the Costa do Sol or the sunny Algarve for a little more than twenty pounds sterling (fare in-cluded) have become a brisk addition to British travel to Por-tugal Transatlantic airlines also now offer attractive fares for set trips.

Railway and bus services are now well organised in Portugal. The CP (the national railway net-work) runs fast trains to link international lines, and provides. pullman service to Spain and down to the Algarva.

Fare concessions are made to groups of students, pilgrims and other organized travelers, and motorists can get their cars ferried at normal rates.

The network of roads throughout Portugal is excellent, and yearly improving The government is at the moment conside ag ten-ders for the building of 358 kilometers of motor roads which will pleace the country from north to south and east to wert.

Opposite to the Lisbon-Lendi will be the new planned Hilton Hotel, while the Lisbon-Sheraton. which is being built virtually on the site of the historic Aviz Hotel, will add another 400 rooms to the city's accommodation this year when it opens at the end of July. This soaring 29-story building will have a roof restaurant commanding the most spectacular view of the city and the wide reaches of the Tagus. It will have its own swimming pool and health club three bars, a coffee shop and grill room, beauticians on the spot and a shopping arcade. Sheraton Hotels are more and more interested in enterprise in Portugal, and will be opening another finelyequipped hotel in Madeira in November. It is understood that they are considering more expansive plans for the future.

Promotion

Last year the Portuguese au-thorities spent more than 518 million escudos of the tourism fund on promoting tourism. Nearly half of this went on loans for the building or improvement of hotels in Lisbon and other strategic places.

Collaborating with the touristauthorities the municipality of Lisbon also plays its part in promoting tourism. The tourist in-dustry brought in more than 15 million escudos of revenue to the tistics for 1969 which have just been published, and considering the mounting figures of visitors. this income must be increasing yearly. It is the municipality which sells the land on which the new tourist hotels are being built. It keeps the city clean and swept, sees to the planning of the green spaces, the spectacular show of flowers in many of the parks and squares, the floodlighting of monuments and fountains, the preservation of quaint old streets.

The municipality also has a hand in entertainement plans and the recently acquired municipal theater in the transformed Sao Luiz Cinema is used for plays and concert programs organized by the city authorities. The municipolity also subsidizes small theaters and produces attractive booklets on the beauties of the city.

MOVING AND FORAGE—Elephant clears what's left of forest as gazelles wait to take over new turf.

By Dick Roraback

PARIS, March 19 (THT),-Harshad Patel and Andy Anderson were at it again, and the subject was euthanasia-euthanasia, moreover, in the prime of life.

"Dammit," said Andy with great emotion, "you just can't get emotional about it. It's scmething that's got to be done." "It's unnatural," sald HarsbBd. "It's a man-made solution, It's against the laws of na-

"So elephants grazing is natural?" shouted Andy. "Like a hunch of flipping goats? Next thing you're going to he feeding them Rice Crisples. No. you've got to shoot the excess animals, you've got to crop the herd, or there'll be no herd."

"Shooting elephants is not nature's way," said Harshad with great dignity.

Reunited in Paris after half a year, Andy, a hotelier just hack from Zambis, and Harshad, B print-shop owner from Nairobi, were just picking up where they'd left off—a running argument as to how best to preserve and maintain the wildlife still running free in Africa's vast but ever-threatened game parks.

As a member of the governing council of-and roving ambassador for-the East African Wild Life Society, Harshad is currently exhibiting his truly extraordinary portfolio of animal ohotographs at the Paris Inter-Continental Hotel, the 25th stop in a safari that has taken him from Hong Kong through Belgrade and Stockholm to New York, preaching the gospel and soliciting support for the preservation of the last of the world's Edens.

The question was whether the elephants in Kenya's 8,000-square-mile Tsavo National Park, large enough to sustain some 20,000 of the tuskers, should be thinned out by "crop-ping" when overpopulated or be allowed to die a more agonizing death from thirst and 'or starva-

Before the encroachments of "civilization," Andy pointed out, elephants, which feed primarily on B ton of tree foliage per day, would migrate as far as 1,000 miles when the food supply was exhausted.

"In times of drought or overpopulation," hc explained, "they level every tree in sight. Talk about defoliation! They leave a plain, then they have to move on, Only now, if they level Tsavo, they have no place to

"True," said Harshad, "but then the plains animals move in-the zebra, the gazelle, the hartebeest-and they thrive. It evens out, And the forest grows again."

"Yeah, in 50 or 100 years it does," sald Andy, "and what happens to the elephants?"

"In Uganda's Murchison National Park they destroyed the trees too," said Harshad. "That's when we found out they'll graze in the high grass if they have

"!" said Andy, permitting himself an epithet of zoological origin best associated with Ger-maine Greer. "What I want to know is what are all those romantic conservationists going to tell their grandchildren when there are no more elephants left in Tsavo because nobody would crop the herd and they knocked down all the goddam trees?"

"Well," said Harshad, "maybe we ought to ask the elephant how he feels about it..."

The conversation wanderedwhich of East Africa's big cats is falo, the third man blinked and the fastest? (the cheetah, then the leopard, then the lion); how much did the translocation of Kenya's 50 roan antelope cost? (about £12,000); can B man survive on B steady diet of salt licks and baobah bark? (no)but Harshad's idle speculation negged the third member of the party, and later, joining the crowd at the photo exhibit, he found himself wondering aloud, "If you were Bn elephant, how would you prefer to die?" "Mmm," said Mylène Favre, a Swiss blonde. "I would like to die by B river, I think, with all my family around me." "If I were an elephant," said Al Darnovsky of Paris and giraffe," Ibiza, "I'd like to die at the age of 85, stomped to a nubbin by B jealous bull—if, nf course, I were an elephant..."

In a corner near the automatic cocktail dispenser (a barman named Bernard), Andy Anderson had given the elephants B well-deserved rest.

"If you've got to bunt," Andy was telling a brace of business types, "the most dangerous animal in Africa is the huffalo. He's got hyper-sensitive sight, smell and bearing, and a brain that'd make an IBM machine apply for welfare.

You wound him, he doesn't slink into the bush to lick his wounds. He'll circle around you and zap your backsides before you ever see him. His personal sympathies un

PRA LOUP, France, March 19 (NYT).-Gustavo Thoeni, who says little in four languages, let his silent skis do his talking foday and won the men's World Cup for the second straight

Thoen, who lives in the German-speaking part of Italy, finished second in a glant slalom, the last race of the season to conserve the lead he gained for the first time yesterday over Henri Duvillard of France. The 20 points he gained today gave Thoeni 154 for the season.

Duvillard, who finished fourth in today's race for 11 points, wound up with 142, only two more than Edmund Bruggmann of Switzerland, today's winner Two skiers had mathematical chances of winning- the World Cup before today's race, hnt both -Jean-Noci Augert of France and Bernhard Russi of Switzerlandfalled to place in the top tem. UCLA Gains NCAA Semifinals

By Leonard Shapiro

PROVO, Utah, Merch 19 (WP).—The first time Long Beach State got the ball yesterday the 49ers raced down the court, threeon-one against UCLA. Chuck Terry came streaking in on the left side, took a pass and went up for what should have been an easy layup.

Then along came Bill Walton. Trailing the play, UCLA's all-America sophomore leaned high in the air and blocked the shot. He made his point quickly, and the Bruins, playing their usual intimidatiog style of basketball, crusbed Long Beach State: 73-57, for the West regional title and still another trip to the NCAA championships, starting Thursday at Soothern Cal.

The undefeated Bruins' 28th victory of the season and 43d straight over two years was achieved hefore 15,152 at Brigham Young University and moved them into a semi-final game against Louisville. North Carolina takes on Florida State in the other semifinal. UCLA will be going after its sixth straight title. "I can't see how they can

NEW YORK, March 19 (UPI). -Mel Davis, who went more than 13 minutes without a point, scored two decisive baskets in an overtime session last night to give St. John's (N.Y.) an 82-81 victory over 19th-ranked Missouri and a herth opposite "unwanted" Oral Roberts in the quarterinals of the National Invitation Tournament.

Richie Fuqua, the nation's second leading scorer, bombed away for 42 points in the first game of the evening doubleheader to pace Oral Roberts to a surprising 94-74 rout of 13thranked Memphis State.

In an afternoon twin bill Tom McMillen's 22 points led Maryland to a 67-55 triumph over St. Joseph's 1Pa.) and Syracuse edged Davidson, 81-77, as Greg Kohls and Mike Lee each tallied

22 points. On Friday night in Madison Square Garden, Lafayette got the NIT off to a shocking start by upsetting Virginia, 72-71, on Jay Mottola's free throw with three seconds remaining. Tracy Tripucka, son of former Notre Dame quarterback, led the winners with points. In the other game. favored Jacksonville beat Ford-bam, 94-74. Davis, who led the Redmen with 26 points, had gone the final 10 minutes 41 seconds of regulation play without scoring and was held scoreless for the first 2:37 of the overtime session. He broke his scoreless streak by tapping in a missed free throw by Ed Searcy to get the Redmen within one point of Missouri, 79-78, with 2:37 remaining, then scored the deciding two points on a driving layup with

1:07 left to play. Oral Roberts, which got invited to the tournement as an after-thought when both Ohio State and Tennessee turned down bids, never trailed in the game as Fuqua's long range shooting picked apart Memphis State's defense. The Titans led, 44-36, at halftime and broke the game open midway through the second half when Fugua scored 15 points in a six-minute span that enabled Oral Roberts to pull away to a 68-57 lead with 9:04 remaining.

Maryland, in bringing its record to 24-5, had to overcome St. Joseph's aggressive zone-press defense. During the first half, the Terps had trouble getting the ball to McMillen, their highly touted, 6-foot-11-inch sopbomore. McMillen bad only 6 points at halftime.

Niagara, Princeton Win NEW YORK, March 19 (UPI). -Niagara, paced by Marshall Wingate's 20 points, had five players in double figures and routed 17tb-ranked University of Texas at El Paso, 76-57, today to gain the quarterfinals in the NIT.

Princeton, the first Ivy League team to play in the NIT, used a ball-liawking defense to down its Big Ten opponents.

The Tigers, with Manakas, substitute Reggie Bird and Taylor contributing 10 steals, played the Hoosiers even at 36-38 in the first half, but pulled away midway through the second half when they outscored Indiana, 10-1. in a three-minute stretch to take a 56-46 lead.

Miller Sets ABA Mark By Scoring 67 Points

GREENEORO, N.C., March 19 UP1).—Larry Miller scored a record 67 points in the American Basketball Association last night to lead Carolina to a 139-125 victory over Memphia.

Miller hit 25 of 39 fieldgoal attempts and sank 17 of 23 free throws to break the league mark of 63 set earlier this year by Zelmo Beaty of the Utah Stars.

LONDON, March 20 (NYT) .-An official British inquiry ended today into the killings of 13 Roman Catholics during a civil rights march in Londonderry on Announcing the end of the menth-long inquiry. Lord Widg-ery, the lord chief justice of England, said: "The real business now begins."

Lord Widgery will now prepare a report for Reginald Maudling. the home secretary, who set up the tribunal after British para-troopers opened fire on the demonstrators in Londonderry's "bloody Sunday." The paratropers claimed that demonstrators. attacked them with nail bombs and guns. Catholics in London-derry maintained that the peratrooper attack was unprovoked. Lord Widgery-who heard 115 witnesses and examined more than 200 photographs-is expected to complete his report within two weeks. The document will probably be released shortly

Still Key Questions Key questions ebout "bloody Sunday" remain unanswered. The most crucial is whether or not gunmen were active in the nearby Bogside district during the Independent witnesses, including journalists, insisted that they saw no bombs thrown, bot several said that they heard shots from the crowd. Numerous soldlers described how they came under fire, and one officer said he shot a man who was "in a nail-bomb throwing position." Maj. Gen. Robert Ford, commander of land forces in Ulster, said that he heard rifle fire and told an assistant: "That was awfully heavy firing."

But James D. McSparran, representing relatives of 12 of the 13 dead, said: "The only army casualty was a soldier who shot himself in the foot. Not one military vehicle with a bullet hole has been produced. . . . There were no traces of a nail bemb having exploded and not one of the hundreds of photographs taken during the incident shows a civilian with a weapon."

Conflicts Cited

Another question was whether or not the paratroopers had fired indiscriminately. The army stressed that all soldiers were told that fire should be aimed at "iden-tified targets" only. This con-flicts with testimony from Catholics that the army firing was indiscriminate and that some paratroopers fired from the hlp without warning.

There was also the question widely discussed in Irish newspapers—whether the army was seeking to use the demonstration "to flush the underground Irish Republican Army into the open." The army has maintained that its sole purpose was to prevent violence in Lendonderry.

The hearings were conducted in two parts. Witnesses were heard in Coleraine. Northern Ireland, and summing-up speeches were made in London. Today, shortly before the inquiry ended, John Stocker,

Georges Marchais, the party's denuty secretary-general, termed the referendum, called by Presi-

Market while the Communists have traditionally opposed it. Mr. Pompldou announced the referendum during a news conference last Thursday. It will decide whether Frenchmen favor the proposed enlargement of the Common Market to include Great Britain, Ireland, Denmark and Norway. Sources close to the government have said that April 23 will soon be officially annunced as the date of the referendum. Mr. Marchais, speaking at a news conference, said: "It is a trap that we bope [the left] will be able to avoid. To this end we are advocating a common stand."

However, the bome secretary observed that this policy placed a great burden on British troops and cost the taxpayers extensive subsidies. Therefore, he sald, in words obviously addressed to the Protestant majority, the people of Northern Ireland must do their part, "even at a cost to your own

Until the government publishes the details of its plan, it is difficult to judge whether it will be bold enough to separate Ul-ster's Catholics from the Irish Republican Army and yet not so sweeping as to unleash armed resistance by the Protestants.

Mr. Maudling spoke in a debate demanded by the opposition Labor party aimed at censuring the government for delaying its peace plan. The initiative has been under intensive discussion here since Mr. Heath first hinted at it on Feb. 6. The Conservative party holds a 26-vote edge over all the other Commons groups combined and thus turned back the challenge easily, 294 to 257. But Labor probably scored some of the political points at which it was shooting and may have heightened the government's sense of urgency.

Vice-President Agnew told a receptive gathering of 3.500 New York City policemen yesterday that he and the Nixon adminis-tration stood for "diligent, strict law enforcement" as opposed to liberal "agonizing" over the causes of crime.

Vice-Pre from Washington for his 10minute surprise appearance at the police department's annual Holy Name Society communion breakfast. At least half his time in the Grand Baliroom of the New York Hilton Hotel was spent acknowledging the cheers, whistles and applause of the men.

He said that despite "fatuous attacks on our institutions" perpetrated by "radicals who have penetrated and permeated our universities, our media and certainly in some cases our law enforcement," respect for police work was increasing. "When it comes to the point of whether this Nixon administration, and particularly myself as an individual, is going to preler the kind of diligent, strict law enforcement that's necessary to protect this country of ours. or whether we're going to agonize over the root causes and conditions of crime that's used as an excuse for some people to commit crime. I'll stick to law enforcement every time." Mr.

Tie longer the government puts off its plan, he said, the greater become the demands from the Catholic side. This Mr. Wilson termed "the law of diminishing acceptability."

Like other speakers, he noted that Protestant extremists bave been gaining ground, a fact brought home forcibly last Saturday when a former Ulster minister, William Craig, called at a mass Belfast rally for the preparation of a list of persons to be "liquidated."

Mr. Wilson also revealed that on his trip to Dublin last week be had met with three unnamed leaders of the Provisional Sinn Fein the political wing of the more violent IRA branch, Presumably, the group included Rory Brady, the Sinn Pein president and former "chief of staff" for the Provisional IRA.

Bonn Parties More Divided As Result of Moscow Speech

Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I, Brezhnev's comments today on the Bonn-Moscow treaty appeared to have the effect of heightening the differences between the treaty's backers and opponents within West Germany.

Mest observers, pointing to Mr. Brezhnev's warning about new cold-war confrontations if the treaties with Russia and Poland are not ratified, thought the Soviet intervention would make Chancellor Willy Brandt's position more difficult.

The Soviet leader's implied threats, they said, would probably stiffen the resolve of the Christian Democratic opposition to maintain its hostility to the treaty. This impression was borne out by the initial reaction from government and opposition-Mr. Brandt's spokesman, Con-

BONN, March 20 (WP),- rad Ahlers, issued a carefully worded statement that characterized some of Mr. Brezhnev's more ominous words as "overstating the case." But, Mr. Ablers added, the Brandt government agrees that defeat of the treaty does involve a "choice between cooperation and confrontstion. He said: "A confrontation would undoubtedly have very negative and dangerous consequences for the federal republic as well as for Berlin." On the other side. Werner Marx, the Christian Democrats' parliamentary spokesman on for-eign policy, indicated that his party was unmoved by Mr. Brezhnev's speech.

Mr. Marx charged that the Soviet leader's own words in describing the treaty proved that its provisions are overbalanced in favor of Mescow.

Also Attempts to Discredit Anderson White House Leads Drive Against ITT Memo

By Sanford J. Ungar WASHINGTON, March 20 (WP).—The White House, angered by the length and the scope of Senate Judiciary Committee hearings concerning tha International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., is directing a major effort to discredit columnist Jack Anderson and the ITT memorandum he published that got the hearings started.

The effort includes feeding negative material about Mr. Anderson and other information to he used in the hearings to Republican members of the Senate and to the press.

In its campaign to disprove the implications in the memorandum allegedly written by ITT lobbyist Dits D. Beard the White House has also used the resources of the Republican National Committee, the Committee for the Re-election of the President and the Justice Department. The most dramatic success so far came Friday night when Mrs. Beard, through her attorney, released a statement calling the memo a fraud. The announce-

Both from the Senate and the White House there were repeated hints last week that there would be a major development relating to the disputed memorandum. and when it came, it was no secret that the administration, through contacts with the attorney, David W.
